

THE LACE EATING COAT

THE FAVORITE.
Heavy broad lace is made up in two delightful coats very simple in shape and requiring no elaboration.
One a dainty neck band in the usual double folds of plisse chiffon about the edges. This coat is extremely dainty and very durable in spite of its somewhat frail appearance. The second is of tiny white lace over faded blue silk chiffon, this in turn over a white satin. The sleeves are full and reach to the elbow, where they are plained in and finished with double puffs and frills of the silk. A cap-sleeve of the lace makes a shoulder
or elbow.

NOVEL BOLERO SHIRTS

WAIST.
Here is a charming novelty indeed—a bolero shirt waist for evening wear. It is of white taffeta glace, embroidered with a flock of silver and pink stocks on the wing. The oddly shaped yoke is of white silk chung, outlined with white and pink silk trimming, edged with tiny ruffles of black chiffon. The lower edge falls in deep scallops over the high, girdle-trimmed, as it also is the short bell sleeves, with plaited flounces of white chiffon over black, several flounces falling around the elbow.

CAPE.
Fancy shoulder capes are worn over the shirt waist or dress, and give a smart and festive touch to an otherwise plain toilet. This handsome affair is of deep accordion-plate chiffon edged with a ruffle of gauze ribbon, the flounce is hung on a deep lace of repoussé lace, with a soft little ruffle at the throat.

A Group of Early Spring Fashions

"FOX-TAIL" BOA AND LARGE MUFF IN WHITE OS-TRICH.

This is a charming set for a wedding or any dress occasion, and looks very lovely in this black frock of crepe de chine and lace, topped with the chin ruffle hat, and would look even lovelier on a white gown. These feather sets are also seen in the daintiest colors, blues, pinks, heliotropes, etc., and they are simply fascinating.

FEATHER CAPE. SIMPLE BUT DRESSY HAT.

DRESSY HAT.
The feather hat is the correct thing for evening and reception wear, and quite indispensable for a stay at the Southern winter resorts.

The simple hat worn with this charming toilet is of blue moire bound with white passementerie. The pronounced crown is encircled with several stand-up ruffles of pickled white calico, with a cluster of blue and silver geranium flowers with white leaves against the crown.
